Six months after COP26, a lot of progress has been made by venues worldwide to commit to the pledge made to be carbon zero by 2050. Some convention centers are even far more ambitious, with plans to become carbon neutral by 2030. But what about the organizers? In this session, we will hear from Ben Wielgus, Chief Sustainability Officer at Informa, what their plans are to make their events sustainable and how they see the role of convention centers
